We are all working together to build a stronger community

BEGINNINGS...................

- Over a social gathering the 3 gentlemen discussed their non-profit clients..................

- They found a common thread.............................

- Most non-profit leaders struggled with providing quality back-office support.........................otherwise known as operational support

- Each of these men own a for-profit company.....................

- They identified a NEED common to most of the St. Louis area non-profits.......................

- A need to operationalize the organization to better realize the mission
